

Rewilding Training Tourism

Rewilding Training Tourism is a training programme focused on developing and upskilling the entrepreneurial, guiding and hospitality segment of Europe’s nature tourism sector. Set up by Rewilding Europe, it aims to professionalise and scale up nature-based tourism in Europe. The Rewilding Training Tourism programme comprises three separate stages, with each of these including an assessment and a “Rewilding certificate” for participants. It is designed for guides, hospitality and tourism entrepreneurs, and other tourism professionals in and outside rewilding areas. Providing comprehensive rewilding and tourism training, it incorporates Rewilding Europe’s best practices.

Rewilding Training Tourism Stages 2022

STAGE 1 ONLINE TRAINING AND SELECTION

A series of five webinar training presentations for all candidates, including an introduction to nature-based tourism, rewilding, hospitality, engaging nature and local partnerships across diverse landscapes, and nature-based economies.

STAGE 2 NATURE-BASED TOURISM IN-FIELD TRAINING

A five day in-field training programme for a maximum of 8 participants, focused on nature based tourism, enterprise, interpretive guiding and hospitality expertise. Bringing tourism professionals together to learn and train in different environments across rewilding areas.

STAGE 3 REWILDING ENTERPRISE AND FURTHER TRAINING FOR ENTREPRENEURS

The 3rd stage of this comprehensive training programme embodies the latest knowledge, experience and expertise on nature based economies and entrepreneurship. You will develop a broad range of skills in rewilding enterprise, nature based tourism and sustainable business development.

Rewilding Training Tourism

STAGE 2

The second stage of this comprehensive training programme, which has been co-developed by Rewilding Europe and Nature Tourism Development, embodies the latest knowledge, experience and expertise. It incorporates rewilding best practice for guides, hospitality and service entrepreneurs, local rewilding enterprise partners and field officers, and other local partners in rewilding areas. Participants will develop a broad range of skills in guiding, hospitality and service, underpinned by the latest rewilding principles.

The second stage will be split in two different disciplines to choose from in 2022:

- 1) Focused on nature based tourism & enterprise (NBTE)*
- 2) Focused on interpretive guiding & hospitality (GH)*

Based in three different Rewilding/ European Rewilding network areas in 2022, we will work together with the local Rewilding teams and nature-based tourism businesses to bring you the best possible local knowledge and experience. Your trainer will be Simon Collier of Nature Tourism Development.

"This training programme will enhance your perspective on the significant outreach potential of rewilding as a new conservation movement. It will also equip you with the skills and knowledge necessary to deliver meaningful and memorable experiences to guests and visitors.

The training will show how an inclusive, sustainable approach to nature-based tourism is beneficial to both people and nature.

We are incorporating hospitality and guide training techniques and practices which have been tried and tested in more than ten countries.

I am both excited and highly motivated to be leading this program – the first of its kind in Europe."

REWILDING TRAINING & TOURISM MANAGER
AND CO-CREATOR OF THE REWILDING TRAINING
TOURISM PROGRAMME

Programme overview

Stage 3 field training is an intensive, six-day training programme based in the Central Apennine mountains of Italy. Participants will benefit from a range of activities and exercises carried out against the backdrop of a beautiful and developing rewilding area.

Stage 3 will see participants dive deeper into the learnings from Stage 1 & 2 and apply these to a live scenario where they will co-create a new nature-based business concept. The business concept will include impact on people, nature and rewilding and equip participants with the skills to develop new business for different areas in the future.

Areas covered include:

- enterprise sessions with local stakeholders;
- strategy sessions with experts from Rewilding Europe;
- business plan development, including financing, community engagement and development; nature-based entrepreneurship in tourism and rewilding;
- high level hosting experiences;
- rewilding implementation, communications and operations.

Field training is limited to a maximum of eight participants, ensuring personalised attention and development.
